Why do we Paint the Town Pink in our community?

St. Landry Parish is above the national average for mammography screenings due to screening access and testing provided by Paint the Town Pink!

That's why we can make a difference!

Louisiana is slightly above the national average in number of women diagnosed with breast cancer. However, the percentage of Louisiana women who are diagnosed with late-stage breast cancer is well above national norms. Early education and access to screening is the most important factor to improve survival rates.

YOU can make a difference.

When you commit to a Faith Sponsorship ($500) your donation covers the cost of ONE mammogram. Research shows if breast cancer is treated early, the five-year survival rate is 99%.

Get Involved!

Paint the Town Pink is an initiative of Opelousas General Health System to promote the importance of women's health, education and availability of breast screening services.

The program is administered through Opelousas General Health System Foundation whose mission is "Supporting OGHS through stewardship, relationships and philanthropy."
